Transformation

- Your organization has undergone a recent merger or acquisition (within the last 2 years).
- The function or line of business you lead has a lot of manual processing, a lot of paper records, or does a large percentage of its work in spreadsheets.
- Automation of processes is resulting in people having less control over their work – at least in the ways they are accustomed to.
- A large chunk of the work your department does has just gone or is now online as an internet service.
- Your organization just put in cloud-based desktop tools like Microsoft Teams or Google Suite.
- The function line of business or team you lead is undergoing a transformation and is also impacted by or participating in one or more transformations elsewhere in the company.
- A new set of standards is being implemented across your company or in your department that demands dramatic new forms of data management and transparency.
- A new set of standards is being implemented across your company or in your department that imposes greater scrutiny in global and environmental impacts and or greater emphasis on equity and inclusion.
- Your organization is about to or in the middle of applying AI, robotics, or machine learning tools.
